Umm. Wow.

I really should brief her on this Georgia program. How do we respond? Can re request a briefing?
We need to do the full programming analysis of funds.

How do I respond to this? Can I do a response memo to this? Suggestion?

Sharing this with you. I think stocktaking needs to ge immediate priority. I also think we need an independent assessment on this, similar to what I did in 2016, which I understand is the only one that has ever her. Done.

We are working on the stocktaking as part of the Mission deep dives but it will inevitably be a work in progress. The issue of what works is definitely nascent. I agree developing an evaluation would be helpful - I can talk with our evidence and learning colleagues on what could be feasible. Also we're trying to get stronger on M&E to figure out how to track improvements across programming.

A couple thoughts on her responses:

#1. She seems to want us to do more debunking and counter offensive messaging. I think this would be very unpopular with many Missions as many have told us that any counter offensive messaging just unleashes trolls at unparalleled levels. I'm not saying it should never be done but I guess it would be good to better understand what exactly she is suggesting here. If instead we're talking about positive affirmative messaging, we're definitely doing that - although can definitely do more/better I'm sure.

2. Related to #1, her comment on #2 implies she thinks the example of the pilot in Kenya is our only effort in positive messaging through social media. While I'm not sure we have always paid for advertising (as that appears sketchy and less authentic) its clear from our discussions that USAID and the Embassy regularly have robust communications about our work including on food security. Definitely we can do more and better, no doubt. Its hard to quantify how many positive messages we put out across all our Missions but its invariably a huge amount.

3. Her point on GEC - to be honest in our field discussions we have practically no missions really using the GEC data. Either they don't find it relevant, don't get it frequently enough or - once again - can't really use it with partners nor with our own public messaging.

Anyway, helpful to see her perspective on this.

got it. I actually get where she is coming from here. I think Georgia has done this well through their program. I am sure there are others. But on the stocktaking and impact. Let's talk. I have an idea.

Hey friends,

Please see SP's comments to my response on MDM. I would love your help on some of this if possible.

Rebecca - I assume the answer from LPA is we don't do anything in terms of "pre bunking or on offensive." Totally ok if that is the answer, but we can lay out some initial plans we are thinking for coms. If you wouldn't mind checking with Lauren Shw and team, that would be great. I obviously have ideas that the coms folks know.

Brittany - I think there are some other examples that we can say from your world as well. If you can offer some countries that we have done something similar to Kenya, that would be great.

cheers, vera

Do I need to send it through clearance or just email it back? Last time, Isabella just asked me to email it to her.

Thanks! Vera

Hi All,

Sharing the initial response to our feedback back to SP on MDM (attached) and now the new response. Welcome your inputs in the new doc. A whole bunch of people have added to it (from DRG, Meral and Josh M), as well as LPA, ITR, OTI, EE.

Johnny will do his final tweakage before we send it back up to SP. Don't think this requires clearance but pls let me know if there is anything major.
