that was an interesting meeting -- really fascinating to hear about how Stop Fake has evolved. Thank you for sharing that link to the Open Information Partnership.

Yes! I'll invite you to a presentation with Zinc that I'm setting up, as they will update on the Open Information Partnership. I sit on the advisory council, it's a great initiative and I hope FCDO continues to support it

My sense is that that type of networked approach is exactly what is needed

TOTALLY! Just like investigative journalism, you need networks for OSINT and tracking disinfo narratives/MDM...these things are networked. To steal a phrase from OCCRP, it takes a network to fight a network following on the work of the IRC and the MDM USAID Mission Consultations, our next step is to try to top up/ carry on w the stocktaking, and then we will have a conference -- like a evidence and learning summit as well as blue sky thinking session. We are going to have a small one-day retreat on 26 January to bring together key stakeholders from USAID and IPs and academic experts to have open conversation, debate and planning around a conference on MDM learning and sensemaking -- planned for April -- after the S4D. I need to send you an update about this.

if there is anyone that you think is really visionary, interesting, creative or who would shake things up and help with sensemaking or helping to orient our thinking -- that's what we are aiming for though, of course they are very welcome. I also didn't know the name of the new person at internews who leads on MDM. So I just put Marjorie down
